

“Everything a great coach needs to be - organised, process oriented, knowledgeable, experienced & most of all - wants you to succeed.”

Tom Clarke-Forrest CEO & Co-founder Sport 4 Life UK

focus on COACHING

Rob Legge Consulting uses proven techniques to help charities & third sector organisations solve problems and realise their potential.

THE RIGHT CHOICE

Choosing the right coach is important. But it can be tough to know what you should be looking for, especially if you have not worked with one before.

How do you make sure a coach will be the right fit for you and your organisation?

Track record

One of the best ways is to ask for examples of individuals who have done well following coaching. If your ideas of success match it is a good indicator that you could work well together.

Chemistry

Make sure you meet (in person, skype or mobile) to explore if you will enjoy working with this coach and that their values align with yours.

THE FOCUS

"Coaching sessions with Rob have been transformational for me."

Sarah Robbins, Charity CEO

My bespoke leadership coaching uses a series of person-centred conversations to help the client. In particular we explore problem solving, overcoming limiting beliefs and stretching goals to help the client realise their potential. By deep listening I help to create an environment where the busy leader can better reflect, explore and plan for a better future.

"I would recommend him if you are in a senior position in a public or voluntary sector organisation and need to manage change or improve your performance."

Simon Slater ex charity CEO and charity Trustee

"Helped me to look at how I could adapt and personally develop as a new chair of Trustees." Deepka Nayar

“I have been coached by Rob for a number of months now and have found his approach to be both engaging and supportive. I am currently facing a number of challenges in my new role as CEO and Rob has given me the opportunity and freedom to explore these issues. Without telling me what to do or what he would do he has enabled me to analyse options and find solutions that work for me and furthermore are in the best interests of the organisation.”

Steven Hill CEO Coventry and Warwickshire MIND

MY COACHING IN PRACTICE

A JOURNEY OF EMPOWERED LEADERSHIP

Following six months of coaching the senior manager at Coventry and Warwickshire MIND I was asked to develop a leadership development programme.

Twenty-five managers were identified across the charity. A programme of three training days plus individual and group coaching for the senior managers was developed and successfully implemented.

“I can pinpoint several pivotal light bulb moments during the time we worked together that had a direct impact on my attitude to the problems. Rob provided the space, quietness and time to think and reflect. I was able to grow as a manager.” Senior Operations Manager.

Following completion of the programme I was asked by the CEO to provide a series of coaching sessions for him as he navigated the organisation's path through a sensitive strategic change.
